The concurrence of the Board of Aldermen and the approval of the Mayor, we believe, will be given to this measure, and it will become a sary for the public welfare; and it is, moreover, ble for the character of their taverns, as to Closing an iron door behind him might answer. have it no longer in their power to accuse the city authorities of failure to protect them.

Under this law, establishments of objectionable character cannot possibly find a location in good neighborhoods, and can only exist by being aggregated into squares that are controlled by people of like character with their proprietors. This will greatly promote the convenience of the police, whose duty it will be to supervise them. There are now disorderly groggeries in some of the best neighborhoods of this city, the removal of which will at once increase the value of all adjacent residences.

We greet this move with lively satisfaction. Our citizens will give to it their hearty approval, and they will remember with thankfulness the public servants who have thus been faithful to their trust. That many amongst us may imagine that they could render the law still more efficient, is altogether probable; but that the views of the many could now be united in any law more salutary than the present we th think is very questionable. At all events we take no steps backward. This law is good, and will not be exchanged until a still better is offered in its stead. Let our fellow-citizens in every proper manner evince their approbation, and encourage the higher branch of the Councils and his honor the Mayor to consummate what has been so nobly begun.

Their rehearsals on Tuesday evenings are public, and it is really a treat to hear them. They will produce some of the choicest new pieces at the first performance of the Young Men's Dramatic Association of Georgetown, at Forrest Hall, on Thursday, October 16th, for which occasion they have kindly volunteered their services.

The Drama-Farce and Tragedy.

A most singular and distressing murder took place in Richmond on Sunday. Richard A. Thomas, aged seventeen years, was stabbed in the breast by William Cudlipp, aged fifteen. Thomas was an apprentice in the Dispatch printing office; and Cudlipp was the son of a dyer and scourer. At the theatre, on Saturday night, Thomas let fall from the gallery an egg on the head of Cudlipp, who was in the pit. Meeting on Sunday morning in the street, they had some words, and separated without fighting, and Thomas and his young companions walked down Broad street to within a square of Cudlipp's home, and stopped there to converse with other boys. In a little while Cudlipp's mother, a little sister and himself came up to them, and Mrs. C., considerably excited, addressed herself to Thomas on the subject of the difficulty with her son. The son took part in the altercation, which was finally broken off by his plunging a dagger into the breast of Thomas! The weapon struck just below the breast bone, and penetrated several inches. Thomas, aware that he was badly wounded, hurried to his boarding house, on Marshall street, about two squares off: he reached it, but fainted as he was going up the steps. Dr. Beale was called in, but found him in a hopeless condition. He died in a few minutes.

The editors of the Dispatch say that Thomas was one of the most gentle, kind, and inoffensive boys they have ever ! tnown. They condemn the wearing of deadly weapons, but remark:

"The murder may, to some extent, be attributed to the rowdyism of the theatre. And we say in all kindness to the manager, that the endency to blackguardism in that edifice ought to be checked, for his own interest, for the credit of the place, and in justice to the pub-

The theatre in Richmond may have the tendency described; but long experience has convinced us that daggers and pistols are worn and murders committed, because the mockslaughters of the stage fire the minds of youth with a species of melo-dramatic heroism that goes with them into the scenes of real life. The stage before you; the "saloon" behind, or not far remote; the gallery above with its painted occupants, and the pit beneath, filled with undisguised rowdyism-these constitute the departments of most theatres, and fortunate are the votaries of the drama who wholly escape the evils of such associations. If eloquence, poetry, music, and the graces of dancing are so illustrated on the stage as to improve a portion of Dr. Bunting, at his private residence, in Seventh Union triumph. the auditors and spectators, mock-heroism, rowdyism, and obscenity have their students still more apt, and the struts and swells of our streets and bar-rooms are but imitators of the greatly admired mimics of the stage, whose caricatures of men are regarded by these miserable beings as truthful portraits. The beautiful, witty, and lascivious plays of the standard dramatic literature are no longer relished by those who are intelligent enough to comprehend them, and the more modern productions are adapted to people of lower intellect and not more elevated morality.

"A Mr. Poppy, in England, committed suicide a few hours after witnessing the execution of Groom, which he went to Norwich to see. On his return home he observed that he though hanging a very easy death; went to his stables for a leather thong, and then hanged himself."

We commend this to the many sticklers for the "vengeance of the law." If vengeance be the purpose, or any part of the purpose, of the death penalty, then the ends of justice are defeated when the guilty dies an easy death. And we call upon the advocates of this law to law. We hall it with pleasure, and offer our increase the pangs and horrors of the death, or thanks to the members of the body by whom it to relinquish this argument. If the punishhas been passed. It is just, wise, and neces- ment, the pain inflicted, forms any part of the object in view, it should be increased-a death truly republican. The residents of each square of torture should be inflicted. If it does not, their ears almost as bad-torrents of female in this city will, under this law, be invested then this pain is unnecessary, and humanity with the power of excluding all such establish- demands that the culprit should be put under ments as tend to the interruption of good order the influence of chloric ether, and put out of and harmony; and they will be so far responsithe world in as easy a manner as possible.

On Sunday night the inmates of the watchhouse were five negro women. House servants are hard to obtain, and trifling when found. The reason is plain-these people drink, lounge, and steal. They need true friends.

Last night there were twenty captives, who were severally fined, bound over, and committed for petty misdemeanors. Twelve of them were captured in the First Ward, gambling, in the house of John Silence, a white man. $72 were collected in fines. This must have reduced the 'pool."

We have taken little notice of this paltry second hoax of the New York Herald; and perserved. But we find it fully contradicted in the Richmond Enquirer of yesterday.

The facts are: That no such convention of the Democratic party has been called by any committee; That there is no committee in existence hav-

And that the next such national convention will probably be called in that manner, unless the Democracy, as organized in the States, shall, through their State conventions, determine upon some other form of procedure in the

THIS ESSENCE has been proved by many thousands of the richest and most respectable families, as well as by the poorer class of people, almost through the whole United States, to be by far the best preparation of Coffee ever offered to the public. Coffee made by this Essence is much more wholesome, more delicate, fine-flavored, perfectly clear, and, in every instance, superior to the finest Java coffee.

BETTER THAN GOLD!

PORTSMOUTH, July 9, 1851.

MR. J. E. BOUSH—Dear Sir: I feel it a duty to make known the benefit I have derived from Dr. Hampton's VEGETABLE TINCTURE. For a number of years I suffered from disease, but to a greater degree for the last three years. One of the forms of my disease was dyspeptent that life was really a burden. The attack of it or

sia. From this dreadful malady I suffered to such an extent that life was really a burden. The attack of it on me was different to that on any other person of whom I have heard; at times it was like the palpitation of the heart; there was a constant thumping and beating without intermission about the region of my heart, chest, and stomach; some of the attacks would last for weeks; my stomach was much distended, with constant pain, great weakness, and constitution of the bowels. I could not eat the most simple food without pain. I also suffered greatly from disease of the kidneys, with constant pain in the back, that I could walk only with great difficulty. I tried nearly sill of the most celebrated patent medicines of the day, but found no relief. I had also the best medical attendance. One of my physicians frankly told me it was of no use for me to be paying him for advice, as he could do me no good. I gave up almost in despair, and thought my disease certainly incurable.

At this juncture I heard of Hampton's Vegetable Tineture. I refused to give it a trial, although persuaded by my friends, until my son purchased a few bottles, and requested me to try it; after taking it a few times, it had a most happy effect on me; my confidence increased, and after taking three bottles, my dyspepsia, or disease of the stomach, was nearly if not entirely cured. I now feel myself a new man, and in better health than for years. I am certain the cure in my case was made by this Hampton's Vegetable Tincture alone. Since my cure I have recommended the tincture to a number of my friends, who have also been relieved by it. Some of the cures have been as rapid and equally wonderful as mine.

I present my respects to Messrs. Mortimer & Mowbray, the proprietors of this valuable medicine, and say to them its value is above price; and from my cure, and what I have seen of its effects on others, I shall ever feel it my duty to recommend it to the suffering. I have no doubt many valuable lives will be prolonged by its use. I hopp the af

The above is extracted from a letter from a gentleman sixty years of age, and of high character. He says: "I have given but a faint idea of my sufferings; I feel inadequate to the task." We also have received, in the last few days, letters from two of our most worthy and well-known citizens, giving two remarkable cures of spinal disease. But yesterday one of the oldest merchants reported that he was cured of neuralgia of the head, of years standing, and so bad that his teeth full out from its effects. Call and see letters. Was there ever so many cures, wonderful cures, made by any other medicinits. All we ask of the afflicted is that they try Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, the great purifier of the blood and cure for all chronic diseases, as dyspepsia, rheumatism, scrofula, and all complaints of the stomach, bowels, &c.
